Grapes sourced from vines overlooking False Bay, facing in a Southern direction.

Grapes were destemmed and pressed into stainless steel tanks for settling. Must was fermented cold in 4800L cask to ensure upfront fruits notes while stirring up the lees once a day during fermentation. Wine went through Malolactic fermentation and was left of the lees for 3 months before bottling.

Practicing Organic

100% Sauvignon Blanc

About the Winery/Winemaker

Two nomads in the South African wine industry, Xander Grier and Rudolph Steenkamp, came together to collaborate and express themselves in ways that the day-to-day hustle wouldn't allow. At Salt Rock Wines, they aim to create awareness of the effect of two climate phenomena, El Nino and La Nina through a focus a series of dry farmed, coastal, and cool climate sites. The wines Salt Rock produce are suitable for consumption all year round and are serious enough to intrigue the wine aficionado, yet approachable and pleasing for the first-time wine drinker.
